WUSD: Principal & number-two administrator take other jobs

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Two Washington Unified School District managers stuck together in a controversy for the past year have just found positions in other California districts. High school principal Mort Geivett will take over at a high school campus in Willows, while Associate Superintendent Sherianne Cotterell has received the Superintendent's job at the Rio School District.

A large number of parents objected last summer when Geivett was moved from River City High School to the district's alternative school, amid a discipline effort spearheaded by Cotterell. Their differences are now the subject of an arbitration hearing.

Cotterrell was asked for parting comments as she heads to the Oxnard area next month to take her first job as a school district superintendent:

"I'm really looking forward to it," she told the News-Ledger. "It's going to be a positive change for me. I wish Washington Unified all the best. It's been a great opportunity to work with all the people and students."

Cotterell will be heading for a district in some distress. According to the Ventura Star newspaper, the 4,500-student Rio School District is paying a $1.4 million settlement after firing its last superintendent, and incurred about $355,000 of its own legal costs in that dispute. Rio's school board on Thursday hired Cotterell on a 3-2 vote, with two board members reluctant to approve the new contract under such financial circumstances.

Meanwhile, Geivett will be back at the helm of a "comprehensive" high school next year, with his new post to the north at Willows. He was transferred against his will from the 1,600-student River City High School to the much smaller Yolo High (an alternative school) last year, and will soon be working at the 525-student Willows High.

"I really enjoyed working with Yolo High staff and students, and I think I learned and grew a lot," said Geivett. "But my interest is more in the 'comprehensive' end, not the alternative end. I think, personally and professionally for me, the move is going to be a good one. I really enjoyed working with almost everybody in Washington Unified."

Geivett's wife, Pam, is the secretary for the superintendent at Washington Unified. Geivett said he plans to live in both West Sacramento and Willows for a while so Pam Geivett can keep her job, and perhaps settle at a new home somewhere in between.

WUSD: Future will extract a price

■ School district tries to estimate what it will need to build over the next 10 years, and how much that will cost

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

West Sacramento's school district has pieced together an estimate of all the schools it will need to build over the next decade, and all the financing it will have available to build those campuses. And the result is a deficit somewhere in the range of $67 million.

That shortfall was the subject of a workshop held by trustees of the Washington Unified School District, their staff, and a handful of audience members Monday afternoon in Yolo High School's cafeteria. And the facilities plan will return to the board for formal approval on Thursday evening.

There was some confusion over some of the "assumptions" made in the report, since changing those assumptions could drastically change the final numbers. For instance, the report assumed that the district would not need to add a second middle school, since the middle school grades would in the future be included on kindergarten-elementary schools don't include middle school grades.

BOARD MEMBERS Dave Farmer and Barry Kalar and Assistant Superintendent Vicky Dali listen as WUSD facilities manager Denny Jones (not pictured) makes a point

"We have not added or set any policy saying we are definitely going to K-8," said school board president Kevin Jones. "All we have done is receive a report on it."

Likewise, there was concern that the facilities plan assumed that all five planned major south-area residential projects would get city approval and bring new residents to town. That was a "worst case scenario" in terms of impacts on local schools, said WUSD staff Denny audience member thought that all five approvals can't happen, based on a City of West Sacramento policy resolution recently negotiated with a community group.

And Superintendent Steven Lawrence explained to the board that the ten-year plan assumed that construction costs would increase by ten percent every year – although in the past four years, costs have actually exploded by 15-20 percent each year. So that assumption must be watched closely, he warned.

The plan calls for a new high schools, improvements to current school sites and construction of a city/school district "corporation yard." Options to help bridge the funding gaps include postponing construction of part of the new high school, building fewer-but-larger elementary schools and asking the public to approve another school bond measure.

WUSD staff stressed that the plan would evolve as "real" facts replace assumptions.

The board will take up the discussion again at Thursday's meeting, at 7 p.m.

West Nile virus is being found

The Sacramento-Yolo Mosquito and Vector Control District reported last week that it has more evidence that West Nile Virus has returned this season to Yolo County.

On July 18, the district said that 11 mosquito samples (seven from Davis, two from Gibson Ranch in Yolo County, and one apiece from Esparto and Woodland) tested positive for the virus. The district may consider aerial spraying to kill mosquitos that carry the virus, in areas where the virus is found.

Two days later, the district said it had confirmed that six "sentinel" chickens placed throughout the county tested positive for the virus. The chickens do not become ill from the virus, but serve as an alert system for those trying to prevent the spread of the disease.

The district's public information officer, Jennifer Benito, reports that to date, nine dead birds and 16 mosquito samples from Sacramento and Yolo have indicated West Nile Virus.

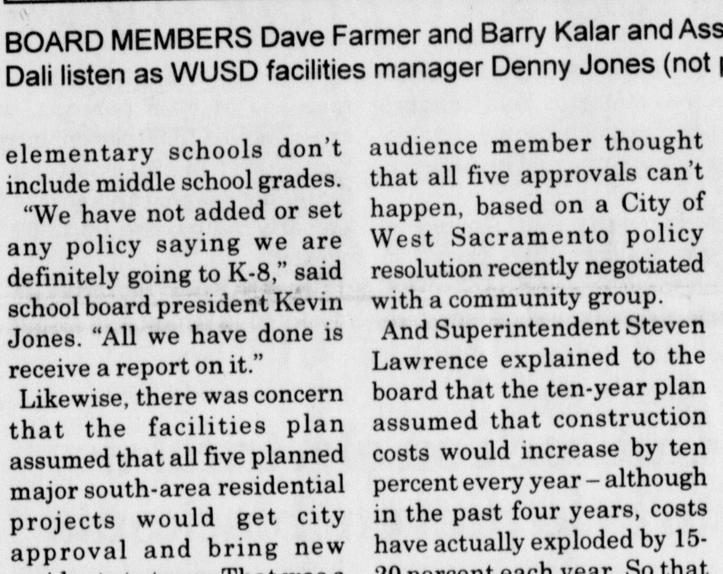

"The virus was discovered in Africa in 1937, and was first detected in the western hemisphere in 1999 in New York. In humans, it can produce a fever and severe neurological disease, even taking the lives of some victims. The elderly, immune-compromised and those with diabetes are most at risk.

Prevention measures include preventing mosquitos (the carrier) from breeding by eliminating standing water. They also include avoiding being outdoors at dawn or dusk (prime mosquito feeding time), using mosquito repellent when outdoors and keeping your home's doors and screens closed and in good repair. PATHBREAKER

City of West Sacramento Mayor Christopher Cabaldon and City Councilman Oscar Villegas led a group of local bicycle riders on a 36 mile round trip from the West Sacramento Civic Center along the American River Bike Path. At the Arden Bar Bridge, they welcomed cross country bicyclist Scott Campbell who was traveling from Boston to San Francisco to promote the development of the "National Bicycle Greenway", a cross country bicycle path. The riders then returned to the Civic Center where Mayor Cabaldon (above left) and Councilman Villegas (center) presented a proclamation to Mr. Campbell (right) expressing appreciation for his ride to promote bicycle awareness. Also pictured, Pam Slocum (background right) who joined Scott for the last leg of the ride.

Party for education

The "Home Run for Schools" event promises an evening of safari-themed gaming and entertainment at Raley Field from 6-10 p.m. on Aug. 9, as a fundraiser for local school programs. The event is sponsored by the West Sacramento Educational Foundation, and last year raised $25,000 for West Sacramento school programs. Corporate sponsors are needed. Visit www.homerunforschools.org or email info@homerunforschools.org for ticket information.

Volunteers still welcome to help 'demo' house

The first "demolition party" for West Sacramento's Helena Helmold went well on July 15, said Donald Massengill of New Life Family Church.

A group of 30 or more people showed up Helmold's homesite at Rockrose Road and Poplar to fill seven dumpsters with the ruins of Helmold's fire-damaged home. Helmold is a local social service provider and activist, and her home was destroyed by fire. The work effort is meant to help her get ready to rebuild.

"About 30 to 35 people showed up and helped," said Massengill. "The Rotary (Club) donated a case of gloves and masks and cases of prepared sandwiches and some water."

Massengill said volunteers are welcome to come back for another work party this weekend, beginning at 7 a.m. on Saturday. They are hoping for cooler weather.

West Sacramento police on Friday announced the arrests of four more people in connection with a shooting at a party July 15 that left 19-year old Marcos Estrada of Sacramento dead and at least two other people shot and injured. The total of arrests is now five. According to a statement by Lieutenant David Farmer of the West Sacramento Police Department, and to information in arrest reports, those taken into custody on July 19 are:

Israel Zavala, age 20, of Fairway Drive in West Sacramento; Diego Yair Covarrubias, a 20-year old Fairway Drive re dent; and an unnamed 17-yea old.

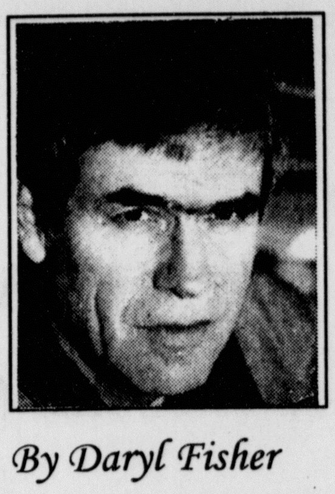

Sacramento po.ice earlier arrested 20-year old Jorge Luis Zavala-Garcia of Sacramento with the suspected "getaway vehicle" and the wounded suspect, Figueroa, on Del Paso Road, shortly after the shooting. One of the suspects had evidently called 911 to get help for Figueroa, who was bleeding heavily.

According to police, about eight uninvited people wearing gang colors came to a party at the ILWU Hall on 6th Street in West Sacramento on the night of July 15. An altercation resulted. At least one person pulled a handgun.

Police have released few other details about the shooting, and no additional information about the circumstances of the new arrests.

Anyone with possible information about the shooting is asked to call 617-4945 or 617-4935.

Getting sick of this heat wave? Eat a banana!

By Daryl Fisher

As I write this, it's late Sunday afternoon (July 23rd) and it's been the hottest day so far of the heat wave which has been going on in West Sacramento and most of California (most of the country for that matter) for over a week now. In fact, a news report I just saw on television said that the temperature reached 112 degrees today in the Sacramento area, and that highs in places like Stockton and Modesto climbed to levels never before seen in recorded history. And combined with a way above-normal humidity that I cannot ever remember experiencing in West Sacramento before, the so-called heat index has been off the chart for the past few days. Plus the high heat, humidity and bad air are expected to be with us for at least another couple of days, which will easily break the local record of eight straight days with temperatures above 100 degrees. Worst of all, nighttime lows are going to continue to be in the mid-70's or higher, making it almost impossible to get a good night's sleep.

"If you ask me," said a longtime friend who is just as sick of the current heat wave as I am, "I think it's definitely time to go watch that Al Gore movie on global warming!"

"It's the humidity that's been killing me," I said. "It's like there's more moisture in the air than oxygen."

"The only thing that's been saving me is my daughter's swimming pool," explained my friend. "If I didn't have that to go jump in after work, I don't know what I would do."

"But do you ever remember us having humidity like this?" I asked, knowing that he has lived in West Sacramento even longer than I have.

"Never! It's like living back in the Midwest or the South where it gets so hot and humid in the summer than all people have the energy to do is sit around on their front porch and sip iced tea."

"As I understand it," I said, "all this humidity we've been getting is actually a fluke."

"A fluke?"

"Yeah. I read somewhere that it's coming up from Mexico where they have this kind of humidity every year around this time. But normally it floats over to places like Arizona and makes them miserable instead of us."

"Well," said my friend, "I just hope it's a one-year deal!"

"Anyway," I said, "other than hanging out at your daughter's swimming pool, what else have you been doing to stay cool and make sure you don't end up with heat stroke?"

"I've been eating lots and lots of bananas," he replied matter-of-factly."

"Really?" I said, a little surprised. "I didn't know eating bananas was helpful during a heat wave."

"Are you kidding," said my friend, "bananas are great for everything! They contain three natural sugars -- sucrose, fructose and glucose -- which give you a substantial boost of energy. Plus they contain tryptophan, a protein that can help you relax and improve your mood. And they have iron to keep you from getting anemia. And lots of potassium for your heart, which is especially important to have in your blood system when it's really hot like this."

"I didn't know all that," I admitted.

"And that's just the half of it," continued my friend. "If you really want to talk bananas, there's hardly anything they can't make better if you eat enough of them. For instance, bananas can also help people quit smoking because they have lots of magnesium to assist the body in recovering from the effects of nicotine withdrawal, and they're also good for heartburn, morning sickness, stress, warts, ulcers, and mosquito bites."

"Mosquito bites?"

"That's right, you just rub the bitten area with the inside of a banana skin and it will stop the itching."

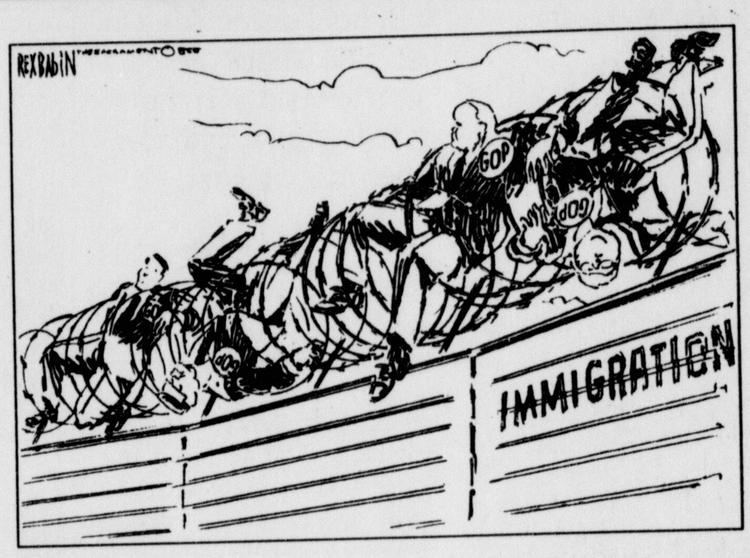

"Well," I said, tactfully trying to change the subject since I figured I had just learned all I would probably ever need to know about bananas, "I guess all we can really do to beat this heat wave -- other than eat bananas of course -- is to drink lots of fluids and spend as much time as possible in air conditioned rooms."

"And that's exactly what I've been doing," said my friend. "In fact, when I'm not in my daughter's swimming pool, I'm watching T.V. in the den, which is the best air conditioned room in my house, and I get it all to myself every night for as long as I like."

"But how come you get the best air conditioned room in your house all to yourself?" I asked with interest, knowing that my friend has a wife and a couple of kids still living at home.

"Because bananas give me really bad gas."

City's assessed property values jump 26 percent

West Sacramento's home construction boom has helped it keep its status as Yolo County's fastest growing region, according to property tax assessment information provided by Assessor Dick Fisher.

The city's assessed property values increased 25.92 percent, or over a billion dollars, from 2005 to 2006.

Countywide, assessed property values increased 13 percent, to $17.75 billion. Davis saw an increase of 8.15 percent, while Winters experienced a 13.99 percent increase, Woodland increased by 14.49 percent and the unincorporated area saw its property values rise by 13.09 percent.

Fisher attributed the increases mostly to "a strong real estate market," which resulted in increases to existing property values, in addition to plenty of new construction.

Cut back on electrical use to help prevent blackouts

As California flirts with power outages due to a heat wave and record demands for electricity, Pacific Gas & Electric Company urges its customers to conserve power and help avoid causing rolling blackouts.

Customers may conserve by setting their air conditioning thermostat no lower than 78 degrees, using fans instead of air conditioning for additional cooling, keeping the drapes closed, turning off unnecessary lights and appliances, and restricting the use of big appliances such as washers and dryers to early mornings or late evenings, when demand for power is less.

As you no doubt have heard, interest rates are on the rise. However, more important are those indexes tied to Adjustable Rate Mortgages (ARMs). Those ARMs have two factors: the margin and the index. The index is neutral, and the lender has no control over it. By adding the index & margin together, you have the "fully indexed rate."

The margin is a fixed number and will never move. The index movement is what makes your payment increase (or decrease. So if you have an ARM and your index is controlled by the LIBOR, MTA, COFI or other index, your payment may already have been affected. If you have one of the loans listed below, it may be time to rethink and reevaluate your current loan:

- A 3/1, 5/1, 7/1 or even a 10/1 interest-only loan
- An Adjustable Rate Mortgage
- An Option Arm Loan
- If you bought a home with a 100% loan: 80/20 LTV loan
- A sub-prime or "B" Loan 2/28, 3/27
- If you have a Home Equity Line of Credit (HELOC)

Viva futbol at Raley Field

By Richard Novoa

By Richard Novoa

Futbol is coming to Raley Field, and I don't mean American football. Soccer fans get ready for the biggest soccer game to ever hit the River City. Local radio station Ke-Buena (97.9), who will be celebrating their 7th anniversary, has teamed up with Heineken USA to bring two of the most beloved Mexican club teams, Cruz Azul and Monterrey to Raley Field on Sunday, July 30th (3:00 p.m.).

La Maquina de Cruz Azul will arrive in Sacramento to play an exhibition match against Los Rayados de Monterrey in a weekend of festivities that will include the final game of the weekend Copa Tecate tournament (noon) and a concert (5:30 p.m.) featuring Jenni Rivera and Patrulla 81, and if that isn't enough fun for one day, the evening at Raley Field will be capped off by a spectacular fireworks show at 8:50 p.m.

Both teams appearing at Raley Field are owned by Heineken USA, who is the sole and exclusive importer, marketer and seller of FEMSA's Cerveza brands in the United States. You might be familiar with a few of their brands like, Tecate, Dos Equis, Sol, Carta Blanca and Bohemia.

Both Cruz Azul and Monterrey have assured local soccer fans that their first teams will make the inaugural trip to the Capitol City. Fresh from his World Cup performance Cruz Azul forward, Jose Francisco "El Kikin" Fonseca, will be wearing his Blues along with World Cup teammates Gerardo Torrado, Ricardo Osorio and fan favorite goalie, Oscar "El Conejo" Perez. Los Rayados will also bring their stars of the World Cup in midfielder, Luis Perez and forward, Jesus Arellano.

The July 30th Cruz Azul vs Monterrey game between these two popular first division Mexican teams will certainly test the financial marketplace for attracting professional, exhibition or FIFA sponsored soccer games to the Sacramento region.

Sacramento as the capitol of California, the fifth largest economy in the world, has a rich tradition in hosting major sporting events thanks in large to the Sacramento Sports Commission. The Sports Commission has attracted and staged many high quality competitions such as the 2000 and 2004 U.S. Olympic Team Trials, the 2004/05 NCAA Track and Field Championships, 1999 John Hancock U.S. Gymnastics, just to name a few profitable events.

Future events which have been awarded to Sacramento include the 2007 NCAA Division I Women's Volleyball Championships, and the 2007 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championships.

So what will it take to wake up Sacramento city officials and promoters in regards to attracting major soccer matches to a soccer rich Sacramento/San Joaquin Valley? The Northern California region holds the highest registration for youth soccer in the United States with approximately 250,000 registrants. Sacramento, representing District 6, has over 77,000, making it the No. 1 district in the country!

One of the major obstacles plaguing the Sacramento area is the lack of a suitable soccer facility or venue to host a meaningful and profitable professional soccer match. The only stadiums or fields in the vicinity capable of staging an event of this magnitude is CSU- Sacramento's Hornet Field, Hughes Stadium and of course Raley Field.

Hornet Field with it's abundance in parking and stadium capacity of over 20,000 would be ideal but the width of the playing field (55 yards) prohibits official FIFA games and the old Hughes Stadium at Sacramento City College is even narrower (50 yards). The ideal soccer field should be 110 to 120 yards in length with 65 to 75 yards in width.

On August 7, 2001 soccer promoter, Dennis Lukens, brought in the Los Angeles Galaxy of the MLS to Sacramento and flew in Necaxa from the Mexican first division to play an exhibition game at Hughes Stadium. While the attendance was reported to be around 10,000, the venture proved unprofitable.

Mr. Lukens also promoted another soccer event in March of 2002 at Sheldon High School featuring the San Jose Earthquakes (MLS) against C.D. Olimpia of Honduras. Again, the promoter attracted over 3,000 fans but he lost his battle with the city fire marshal to add portable seating to enlarge the stadium capacity and again it stymied his attempt to make the venture profitable. Lukens went on to promote numerous international matches in other cities and last season served as the general manager of the California Cougars in the indoor soccer league.

Other promoters have made an attempts to promote soccer locally but again the stadium issue sent them searching for greener pastures. The Chivas de Guadalajara, who were on a whirlwind tour of the United States, made a stop in Stockton to play at the University of the Pacific's Stadium before a sold-out house that was very profitable for the promoter, Marquez Bros. International.

Marquez Bros. signed a 15-match agreement, through 2003, to promote Chivas exhibition games in various cities such as Los Angeles, Las Vegas, Dallas, Portland, and Phoenix. Their first stop in the tour was at San Jose's Spartan Stadium and drew 15,259 fans. The Marquez Bros. passed on Sacramento as a venue because the Capitol City didn't have a facility to meet their needs.

Currently, the only game in town is the poorly promoted first place Sacramento Knights of the National Premier Soccer League. The Knights used to be the Sacramento Geckos in 1999 and then changed their name to the Scorpions, who competed with respect in the very tough and competitive USL first division, but bankruptcy and no stadium or a place to call home forced them from the succeeding off the soccer field.

The Knights continued to play in 2005 and 2006 and had a successful season this year on the field, winning the NPSL Western Conference Championship (14 wins, 3 losses and 5 ties) on last Sunday in Albuquerque, New Mexico, but team has struggled at the box office attracting far less than 1,000 fans per game at the Consumes River College stadium. Rumor has the Knights bringing in the Chivas USA (MLS) to play them an exhibition game on Sunday, August 20th at Consumes River College.

So where will a professional soccer draw its power to overcome the obstacles of no venue or outdoor Arena? The answer is Raley Field in West Sacramento.

The biggest obstacles facing promoters use of Raley Field is that it's the home of the very successful River Cats

Walks of life

TERRENCE 'TERRY' O'FLAHERTY, Age 42
Proprietor of Southport Coffee, Harbor Boulevard

What was the most powerful event in your life?

"That whole day at the hospital when my daughter was born was a moment where I stepped completely outside of myself. There was only concern for my wife (Sharon). It was like being in contact with something greater than myself.

"We had some complications. It was a pretty emotional experience. Then she was born and I felt like I was completely in love with her. I felt like somehow there was meaning – not that there was none before, but it was now tangible, feeling love for somebody and not necessarily expecting anything in return. It was transforming to me."

Police log

July 17, 2:33 a.m.
An Allan Avenue resident told police that people who had been nearby earlier, showing guns, had just phoned his cell phone to say they were going to come and do a drive-by shooting. The matter was gang-related, but the caller said he was not in a gang.

An officer contacted a 32-year old Rancho Cordova man during a 5th Street traffic stop. The man said he had no ID, and verbally gave the officer his name and birth date. But the man's physical description didn't match that on record for the person he gave. The man was detained, and then gave his true name, admitted he was on parole, and said he "might" be wanted as a "parolee at large." That turned out to be correct, and the man was booked.

July 20, 7:22 p.m.
A 19-year old West Sacramento man was arrested at West Capitol Avenue and Harbor Boulevard for driving a stolen vehicle. The Pine Street resident was also unlicensed to drive.

July 21, 2:40 a.m.

July 21, 11:30 a.m.
A 23-year old Elk Grove mand and a 24-year old woman were involved in a disturbance on Harbor Boulevard. An officer several times asked them to leave – but they wouldn't, and were booked.

July 21, 10:50 p.m.
A 26-year old Elk Grove man was seen driving a 1996 Toyota Corolla that a records check showed was stolen, and had stolen plates. The man was stopped by police on Halyard Drive and arrested.

July 22, 5:36 p.m.
A 68-year old north-area man became angry with his daughter-in-law and pushed her out the front door, where she fell on the concrete. She pressed charges.

July 22
A "state street" area 52-year old man was arrested for assaulting his live-in girlfriend with his hand and with his pickup truck. He was arrested, and several firearms on the premises were seized. The man had been out on bail for brandishing a weapon and another charge.

July 23, 1:40 a.m.
An officer responded with lights and sirens to a fight on Cummins Way. A 28-year old Sacramento man at the scene was repeatedly ordered by officers to leave, but stayed to "incite" a crowd of at least five people. He was tasered by two officers and jailed.

July 23, 2 p.m.
A 21-year old man threw a stool through his mother's aquarium and then tossed a brick through her car windshield at their north-area home. Officers arrested him and he admitted causing the damage, which was valued at about $950.

July 23, 1:42 a.m.
Officers attempted to stop a Maple Street man driving an Oldsmobile Cutlass near 6th and B streets, but the driver did not yield to lights and sirens. When finally stopped, he fled on foot. Police caught the man, who was on parole, had outstanding warrants and was believed to be a gang member.

July 23, 7:30 p.m.
A woman wanted to press charges after her 43-year old ex-husband pushed her, causing her to fall into her car during an incident at his south-area house.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Bits & pieces

At next Wednesday's city council meeting we'll find out how many West Sacramento residents are concerned (one way or the other) about the idea of adding fluoride to the city water system to improve the dental health of West Sacramento residents.

Let's hope we can avoid a sea of "junk science." That's the stuff that's big on emotional impact and personal testimony, but small on facts that can be examined, verified or judged. There will be plenty of science to talk about without bringing in the junk.

Yolo County has a best-selling mystery author, John Lescroart (say less-crow)of Davis. Lescroart's latest novel, The Hunt Club, happens to feature a West Sacramento murder suspect in the book's Bay Area setting for intrigue.

That suspect isn't an individual as much as it's an organization: the California Correctional Peace Officers Association, or CCPOA, which is housed in a large brick building on Reed Avenue near I-80. The CCPOA represents the state's prison guards (who are sworn officers, like city police), and is one of the most powerful labor unions in the state. The CCPOA is a driving force and a serious source of campaign funds for politicians who vow to stiffen prison sentences and to build more prisons. Putting people behind bars, and keeping them there, makes good business for the union.

The CCPOA figures heavily in the book as one of several suspects in a murder case, although its headquarters in West Sacramento is mentioned only in passing.

A "Tour of California" bike race kicked off this spring, with a long course through the state inspired by the famous Tour de France. It was a hit. Organizers are talking about including Sacramento in next year's version of the race – possibly with a stint involving the Tower Bridge and other Sacramento-area landmarks.

Inclusion of the Tower Bridge could mean that part of the race will come through part of West Sacramento as well. Dust off your lawn chairs and stay tuned for more information.

Letters to the Editor

Get involved

After attending a city council meeting this past week, I thought I'd bring up a few issues of concern. It is good that the council approved an evaluation of our levees to begin, but I don't understand why it is just now happening. We were told last winter, when we had scary days of possible flooding, that there would be work done on the levees this summer. Why are we just now having the engineers evaluate them? Every day, when I drive on the River Road, I see work being done on the Sacramento side of the river. Why aren't we working on ours yet?

It was interesting to listen to almost two hours of discussion regarding putting fluoride in the city's water, yet issues like safety preparedness and flooding get limited discussion time, let alone an extension of time allowed for public comments on those issues. Also, being that the mayor was mentioned in the Grand Jury Report, I would have thought there would have been some kind of public address regarding that.

I am also writing this letter in hopes of encouraging West Sacramentans to get involved and come see for themselves the financial ideas that will be discussed at this week's school board meeting on Thursday, July 27th. Personally, I am seriously concerned about the "creative" financing some of our district staff is proposing. We as a community need to be a part of the process and make our concerns heard. We have to take these matters seriously because the outcome will have an affect on all of us, whether you have kids in the school district or not. As taxpayers we are the ones footing the bill.

Over the past year I have seen too many issues pushed through and approved without any questions. Some of the proposed financial ideas can have a devastating effect on our school district. We as a community need to make sure our children's best interests are met and not that of developers, architects and construction companies. We can no longer tolerate anyone pushing personal agendas. We need to expect accountability. Please come and take part in issues which will affect all of our futures.

No shuttle diplomacy

I made an observation last week regarding the current situation in Israel's response to two (actually three) incursions of her borders with apparently coordinated attacks by what are essentially terrorists who've infiltrated the elected governments of boarding nations. (And yes, even Hitler made the trains run on time)

My observation was in response to the cacophony of calls to have us, US, initiate shuttle diplomacy to establish yet another cease fire in the region. Meaning, of course, that Israel must stop defending herself with such great vigor and strength and let the poor, beleaguered terrorists rearm, redeploy and replenish their stores of whatever else they need to attack Israel yet again. Ad infinitum.

Since the term shuttle diplomacy stems from the Nixon era, and then Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's traipsing about the very same region negotiating cease fires between the terrorists and Israel back then, and since secretaries of state have done the very same thing in succeeding administrations with equally temporary and limited success, I was reminded of the following question: "What is the classic definition of insanity?" Answer: "Doing the same thing over and over and expecting a different result."

Cease fires and proportional responses are viewed as signs of weakness and only embolden our common enemies to try and do even greater damage to us. They do not mellow out the terrorists and cause them to give up their ideological goals of either converting us, or annihilating us. There is no so-called middle ground with them -- period.

DINING, TRAVEL & ENTERTAINMENT

CRITIC'S CORNER
By D.NA Smith

"Pirates of the Caribbean: Dead Man's Chest"

Running time: 150 minutes
MPAA rating: PG-13

Man, is this a long movie. Seriously. Have your girlfriend bring The Big Purse, cuz you're gonna hafta smuggle a cake and a rack o' ribs into the theater if you expect to make it to the end credits of "Pirates of the Caribbean: Dead Man's Chest" without passing out.

Johnny Depp returns as Captain Jack Sparrow, the sashaying, part Wile E. Coyote, part Keith Richards swashbuckler trying to weasel his way out of a pact he made with the squid-faced Davy Jones. If Sparrow doesn't deliver 100 souls to Jones within three days, he will be consigned to serving 100 years as a slave on Jones' ghost ship.

Orlando Bloom and Keira Knightly also reprise their roles as Will Turner and Elizabeth Swann, the bland lovers who find themselves pulled into Jack Sparrow's bumbling scheme to thwart Davy Jones.

Of course, because "Dead Man's Chest" is so interminably long and the second chapter in a trilogy (can you say "Cliffhanger Ending"? Sure. I knew you could), what could have been an extremely entertaining standalone flick ends up being a pretty good middle act with only about 45 minutes of spectacular and gut-bustingly funny moments. The entire sequence featuring Jack Sparrow attempting to escape from a tribe of cannibals could've been a movie in its own right. It is one of the funniest examples of slapstick comedy I've seen since Chuck Jones did the Road Runner cartoons back in the '60s.

Here's the good and bad of the movie: Depp steals every scene he is in. He carries the movie. He is more exciting to watch than all the millions of computer-generated effects in this film. Unfortunately, every scene Depp ISN'T in suffers because Bloom and Knightly simply don't have the acting chops or the screen presence to compete with Depp. These are the scenes where you glance at your watch and become aware of how long the film is.

Still, "Dead Man's Chest" is a darned good summer film and well worth your time. Just don't forget the cake and ribs.

CELEBRITY extra

Q. Is Rolling Stones guitarist Keith Richards going to be in "Pirates of the Caribbean 3"? First I heard yes, then no, then yes, then no. Do you know which it is? — Kyle Y., via e-mail

A. Things were up in the air for a while after Richards' fall from a coconut tree in Fiji back in April, resulting in surgery to remove pressure on his brain. But, now all systems SEEM to be a go for Richards to make a cameo as the father of Jack Sparrow (Johnny Depp). Depp confirmed at a recent press conference: "We're all looking forward to the idea of Keith coming in and doing a cameo. You never say it's definite until the guy steps on the set and the camera is rolling. But it's looking very, very good."

Q. I can understand "Desperate Housewives" not getting an Emmy nod for Best Comedy this year, as they have been suffering from the sophomore slump of poor writing and too many new characters confusing everything. But how could "Lost" get passed over for Best Drama? In my opinion, it is by far the best show on television, and even surpassed its first season, for which it won the Emmy. — Taylor J., via e-mail

A. I feel your pain, I really do. But sometimes, the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences can be just as fickle as the next guy, and this year they seem to have found a new ABC darling to honor: "Grey's Anatomy." That doesn't mean that "Desperate Housewives" and "Lost" are yesterday's news, but hopefully someone is taking note of the snub and realizing that a little retooling is in order (especially in the case of "Housewives"). And then, maybe come fall, these two shows will absolutely knock our socks off.

Q. What happened to "The Book of Daniel" on NBC? I loved its rich blend of comedy, morality and reality, and was crushed when it didn't reappear after two episodes in January. Did it not have enough sex, and — because it starred a priest (brilliantly played by Aidan Quinn) and had frequent appearances by Jesus — did it have too much religion? — Judy P., Cape Coral, Fla.

A. Many good shows fall victim to controversy, and "Daniel" was no exception. The show featured a pill-popping Episcopal priest (Aidan Quinn), a 16-year-old girl who was a drug dealer, a priest's lesbian secretary who was sleeping with the priest's sister-in-law and a main character who was a 23-year-old gay Republican. NBC dropped the show from its lineup after many affiliates pulled it from their schedules, advertisers dropped left and right, and it wasn't able to draw in needed viewers to its Friday night timeslot.

Q. Do you know if "JAG" will be released on DVD anytime soon? It is taking so long, and I wonder what the delay is. — A Reader, via e-mail

A. It should be available by the time you read this. Paramount was scheduled to release Season One of the military legal drama on July 25.

Clemente: The Passion and Grace of Baseball's Last Hero
By David Maraniss
(Simon & Schuster, $26)
Reviewed by Chris Richcreek

The lives of baseball players Roberto Clemente and Lou Gehrig have many similarities. Both were on World Series-winning teams. Both were relatively young when they died. Both left such an impact on their sport that the traditional five-year wait for them to get into the Baseball Hall of Fame was waived. And both are the subjects of superb books.

Jonathan Eig's "Luckiest Man: The Life and Death of Lou Gehrig" was published in 2005. This year has brought "Clemente: The Passion and Grace of Baseball's Last Hero," by David Maraniss, author of 1999's stellar work about Green Bay Packers coaching legend Vince Lombardi ("When Pride Still Mattered").

Much like Eig's "Luckiest Man," "Clemente" is a book that a reader devours while knowing that despair is just around the bend. Gehrig was not quite 38 when he succumbed to the disease that now bears his name. Clemente's life ended at age 38 in a plane crash on Dec. 31, 1972, as he was taking earthquake relief supplies to Nicaragua.

Clemente became a revered legend in his native Puerto Rico and was the first Latin player to be enshrined in the Hall of Fame. The proud "Momen" won two World Series rings during his 18-year career with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Maraniss captures the essence of Clemente, including a key philosophy: If you have a chance to help others, and you don't, you are wasting your time on this earth. It was a philosophy that would help contribute to Clemente's death.

Given today's era of baseball, in which performance-enhancing drugs get as much attention as happenings on the field, "Clemente" becomes even more of an exceptional read. His deeds on and off the diamond truly make him "Baseball's Last Hero."

Opening lead — ten of hearts.

From the very start, a fine declarer envisages the play of the hand as a whole. He is careful not to segregate the problem of how to play to a particular trick from the problem of how to play the entire hand.

Take this case where West leads the ten of hearts against three notrump. It is certainly not difficult for South to conclude that East has a string of hearts headed by the A-J.

Ordinarily, declarer would play the queen from dummy to assure himself of two heart tricks. Certainly, in most hands, that would be the right way to handle the suit.

But here the proper play is the nine of hearts, not the queen. The purpose is to get East to duck. South should be focused more on the importance of winning the first trick than in creating an extra trick in the heart suit.

East is likely to duck if the nine is played — and if he does, South makes the contract. He wins with the king, overtakes the queen of clubs with dummy's king, takes a diamond finesse and finishes with nine tricks consisting of a heart, six diamonds and two clubs.

Of course, East might prove to be a suspicious soul. When the nine is played from dummy, he might start asking himself all kinds of questions and conclude that something is rotten in the state of Denmark. He might then go up with the ace in order to lead the K-Q and another spade, defeating the contract.

Declarer cannot force East to duck the heart by playing the nine, but he is more likely to accomplish his purpose by doing so. If the queen is played instead, East is sure to take the ace and will most probably shift to a spade on the assumption that South has two heart tricks coming.

Declarer thus shapes his play with an eye on the contract rather than on the extra heart trick he can make.

Fave Foods OF THE FAMOUS
by Steven Austin

Kerry Close

The 2006 Scripps National Spelling Bee began with 275 contestants from all over the globe. One day and 20 grueling rounds later, Kerry Close of Spring Lake, N.J., was declared the champion in front of a large worldwide TV audience after spelling the word "Ursprache." Kerry had competed in the Bee for five years in a row and had increased her ranking every year; her highest previous finish was a tie for seventh. The 13-year-old junior-high student studied about two hours every day for a year to prepare for the Bee. When she's not flawlessly spelling words most people don't even know exist, she has a busy family life that includes soccer, running, sailing and spending time training her Maltese puppy, Danny. As you might imagine, she also likes to read and write, and hopes to be a journalist one day. For more info: www.spellingbee.com and www.bistroole.com

Create a new word that includes some of your fave foods:

"Chickenhamburgermintchipicecream."

Tell us about your celebration dinner.

"The night after the Bee there was an awards banquet that honored all of the spellers. The meal was delicious. We were served fresh fruit compote, seasonal lettuces, chicken breast stuffed with apple and fennel, and chocolate banana pudding for dessert.

After Bee Week, I was on the road quite a bit. When I returned to New Jersey, my family and I had a celebratory dinner at one of my favorite restaurants, Bistro Ole in Asbury Park, N.J. I had the Pollo ala Sevillana, which is sauteed chicken in an orange and olive sauce with Spanish rice and vegetables. It was wonderful, and Mr. Rivera, the owner, was kind enough to give me the recipe to share with everyone."

Foods you dislike so much you even hate to spell their names.

"I do not like to eat mushrooms and onions."

Best school lunches:

"Peanut butter sandwiches, bagels with cream cheese, and apples, which are brought from home. Every Monday at school is "Sub Day," and I purchase a turkey sub with lettuce and tomatoes."

Any lucky meals?

"The morning of my regional spelling bees in New Jersey, my dad prepares peaches and cream oatmeal, a banana and hot chocolate. I consider this my lucky meal because it is what I ate the morning of my first regional Bee championship back in 2002. While studying, I snack on mint chip ice cream."

Best Jersey Shore foods:

"The great breakfasts at the local Jersey diners, sub sandwiches from the delis, and homemade ice cream. Boardwalk food is fun, too, including burgers and fries. The best boardwalk drink is fresh-squeezed lemonade."

SACRAMENTO PIONEER EXPRESSES GOOD WILL AND FOND HOPES FOR THE SUCCESS OF THE VIRDEN PACKING CO.

SALES OF STOCK IN THE CORPORATION ARE EASY, INDICATING THE DESIRE OF MANY TO PARTICIPATE IN THE PROFITS OF CONCERN

Sacramento, May 29.—For half a century Denis Moroney, a stock-raiser and rancher at Wilton, in this county, has dreamed of a great California packing house and union stock yards. For fifty years he has had to sell stock at little or not profit because of the excessive transportation to easter plants. For two score and ten years he has been waging a one-man campaign among the stock men of California for the establishment of a home market.

And on May 13th, as he was celebrating his ninetieth birthday, a salesman of the Virden Packing Company brought him the news that his fifty-year dream was about to come true, that a $5,000,000 packing house plant and stockyards were to be built at Sacramento.

Moroney tells interestingly of early days, when stock men and ranchers in the State had to ship their raw products around the Horn to Boston, where they were manufactured into finished products, and a portion reshipped around the Horn to California for consumption.

"In those days we used to pay transportation to the Atlantic seaboard and then back to California for the finished products, and we are still doing it on many of the products which might as well be manufactured here," says Moroney. "I realized early in my ranching career that this uneconomical method of doing business could not go on forever if California stock-raising and ranching was to be a business success. I saw the necessity of a home market and talked home markets continuously to my doubting fellow ranchers, who thought they would be limited.

"Time has proven that I was right. Men of capacity and with the reputation for undertaking and accomplishing big things, have organized the Virden Packing Company, which is to furnish us with the home market as necessary to our business success, and to remove for all time the one serious drawback to California stock-raising."

At the offices of the Virden Packing Company the greatest optimism prevails and the greatest encouragement has been extended to the salesmen of the Company, not alone by the stock-raisers of California, Oregon, Washington and Nevada, but by men engaged in other lines of trade.

The opinion seems to prevail that the success of the Virden Packing Company is without doubt, that it is practically assured.

That assurance has extended itself in such a way that it is believed active building operations will be started early this fall.

Word from Omaha the other day indicated that at this writing there are 30,000 men engaged in the packing business and its side issues in that town.

Omaha has no more right to make this claim than Sacramento for eventually Sacramento is destined to be the center of the greatest stock-growing district in the world.

The site for the packing house has already been purchased from the West Sacramento Company and is splendidly located for rail and water transportation. It is immediately south of the town of Washington, on the bank of the Sacramento River and in direct connection with three overland railroads and two suburban roads.

The existence of the Virden Packing Company and its stockyards will eventually mean a population in Washington of not less than 10,000 people.

Adding that to those who are now finding employment in the two large rice mills, in the bean cleaning establishment, in the U. S. Fibre Products Company's plant and other industries, there should be a population on the Yolo side of the river, within ten years, of not less than 20,000 people.

PETITIONS FOR GAS SUPPLY IN CIRCULATION MONDAY

At a meeting held Tuesday evening in the Palm home it was decided that the circulation of petitions for a gas supply would be started Saturday or Monday.

The town has been districted to make the work easy and every resident and property owner is expected to sign.

At the Improvement Club meeting next Tuesday a report will be rendered on the success of the ladies.

Home owners are earnestly waiting for the petitiong.

The warm weather of last Tuesday was the harbinger of real summer and many ladies wished they had gas for cooking.

Every interested person in the town is hoping that a gas supply can be secured, but there are many difficulties to be overcome.

Gas pipe for mains is extremely high at this writing and may not always be secured.

With a gas supply available for cooking purposes every house in town will command a better rental and will never be tenantless.

Parish festival

Holy Cross Church plans its annual parish festival for the weekend of Aug. 5-6. Saturday's hours will be noon to 10 p.m. and Sunday's will be noon to 7 p.m. There will be food for sale, live music, games, raffles and fun, with a menudo breakfast planned for 8 a.m. on Sunday only. The church is located at 1321 Anna Street and can be reached at 371-1211.

Independent learning

Students in 7th through 12th grades pursuing a high school diploma, earning credits towards a G.E.D., or who wish to be involved in an academic support program may apply for a new independent study program provided by Sierra Innovations Services, a public school charter, at the Collings Teen Center. A program is also available to help those who have not passed the state high school exit exam. Free. Call the teen center, 375-0681.

Retire that flag

Raley's stores will partner with American Legion Post 447 and Amerit to provide a way to respectfully retire worn or torn American flags. Customers may bring their old flags to any Raley's store or other member of the chain (there is a Raley's near West Capitol and Westacre in West Sacramento). The program lasts through Sept. 4. Flag etiquette sheets will also be available on site.

Old computers

Donate your surplus computers for charity. You can drop off a computer (minimum: Pentium II, 250 megaherz, a mouse, mouse pad, keyboard, or cash) at the teen center on Merkley Avenue next to the post office. The "Computers4Kids" program is a collaboration of the teen center, Chamber of Commerce, school district, county office of education, city college and local businesses. Equipment may help local schoolkids or businesses. Call Lewis Bair, 916-806-6447, to schedule a drop-off appointment.

Donations may be tax-deductible.

Winning photos

View the winning photographs from the city's "15 Days in May" photo contest through July 28 at the Arthur F. Turner Library Branch, 1212 Merkley Avenue.

The exhibit will move to the Yolo County Fair from August 16-20.
